

Shree Sai Gokulam Gaushala

Located just 32 kilometers from Vadodara, in Saidal Village, Taluka Waghodia, District Vadodara, Shree Sai Gokulam Gaushala is more than just a shelter for cows; it is a center of innovation, sustainability, and empowerment.

Guided by the noble mission of cow protection and upliftment, the gaushala focuses on creating eco-friendly, organic, and handmade products that support environmental well-being and rural livelihoods.

The gaushala operates with a dual purpose: promoting traditional, sustainable practices and providing women with meaningful employment opportunities. By transforming cow by-products into usable, natural items, it has become a beacon of organic living and community development.

Meet the Founders of Shree Sai Gokulam Gaushala

Mrs. Nipa Soni – Empowering Women and Supporting Cow Welfare

Mrs. Nipa Soni, one of the visionary founders of Shree Sai Gokulam Gaushala, is dedicated to empowering women and promoting sustainability. She encourages women to create eco-friendly products such as diyas, puja items, and home decor using cow dung. This initiative not only provides women with meaningful employment but also contributes to the noble cause of cow welfare. Through her efforts, Mrs. Soni is helping preserve traditional practices while promoting a sustainable and natural way of living.

Mr. Jayesh Soni – A Pathologist and Advocate for Organic Farming

Dr. Jayesh Soni, a renowned pathologist from Vadodara, is deeply committed to organic farming and sustainable agriculture. As a co-founder of the gaushala, he guides farmers in adopting natural farming techniques, helping them grow healthier crops without chemicals. Dr. Soni also conducts organic farming training sessions at prestigious institutions like Parul University, the Centre for Entrepreneurship Development (CED), and Aatma. His work bridges the gap between modern science and traditional farming practices, benefiting farmers and the environment alike.
